He was the son of a wealthy business man.

William Morris – The Style

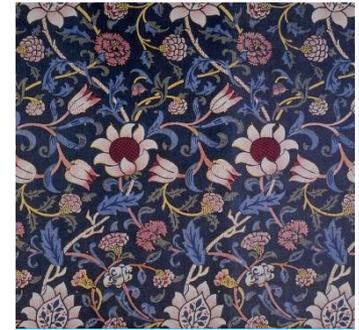

William Morris is very famous for his wallpaper designs. He created some beautiful designs, the likes of which had never been used before. In fact, wallpaper before his day was quite plain.

The Victorian era was the era of industrialisation; factories were being built in the cities in Britain, especially London. People flocked to the cities to work in these factories or run them, and the cities grew bigger and bigger. As a result, people led more urban lifestyles and grew to miss the countryside. Wealthier people did have gardens, but still, it was desirable to feel closer to nature.

William Morris, who was also an environmental campaigner, created designs of floral patterns (patterns inspired by flowers and plants) which were repeated many times by block printing.

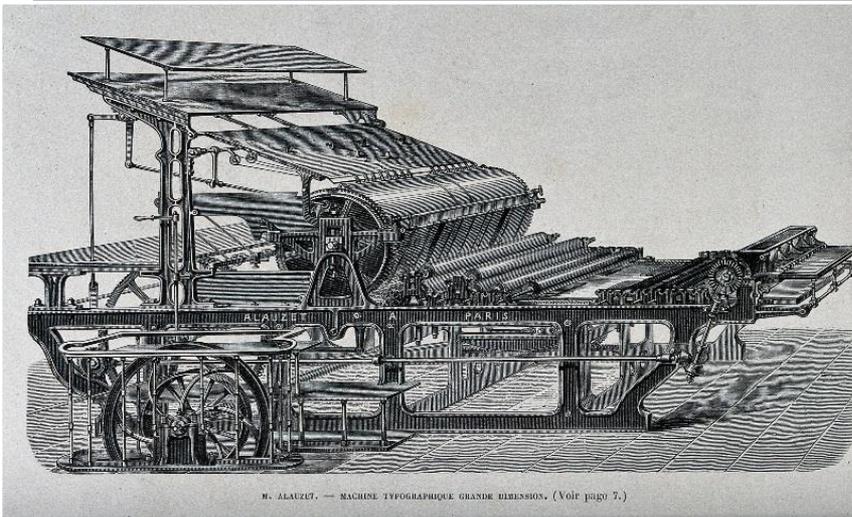

William Morris – The Technique

What William Morris did was to make designs of floral patterns (patterns inspired by flowers and plants) that could be repeated many times by block printing techniques on large pieces of paper to make patterned wallpaper.

This process was later improved through advances in technology, using printing machines and synthetic coloured inks.

Have a look at the William Morris paintings on the next few pages and have a chat about them with your adult. What do you notice and how do they make you feel?

Task

As it was Remembrance Day yesterday, your task is to re-create William Morris's 'Red Poppies' picture that he created in 1881 (on the following page).

It is up to you whether you re-create it as a drawing, a collage, a painting ... or in a different art form altogether.
